300 LICE Or More On One Hen

Is by no means uncommon. No one would expect to find a hen with that number of "lice" sucking her blood, but many expect the old hen to go ahead and lay eggs while lice and mites are sucking her very life. We have counted over 300 dead lice under a row of ten hens, on a roost board painted the night before with Lee's Lice Killer. This great killer does double duty—contact kills mites, lice, bedbugs, etc. about the rooster; the vapor kills lice on the chickens sitting over it. Put up only in airtight cans.

Build Half Mile of Good Road

With the slogan, "better roads for Beaver County" as their motto two hundred citizens of Forgan and vicinity joined in the first "good roads" demonstration in the history of the Panhandle, Thursday, April 30th. All day long, merchants, bankers and preachers toiled side by side with farmer-and laborers and when night came a half mile of solid dirt roadbed had taken the place of the bar-stretch of sand on the north side of the Beaver river between the county seat and Forgan.

Most of the work was accomplished by loading the wagons with red clay dirt mixed with gyp and hauling it to the road where it was dumped and leveled off by those in charge of this division of labor. A unique bridge-like arrangement was made for loading. As soon as a wagon passed under the bridge, it was quickly filled by men with teams and scrapers above dumping the dirt into the hole or schute, allowing it to fall through into the wagon.
As soon as one wagon was filled, another moved under the bridge to take its place and thus the work progressed, it taking but a very few minutes to fill a wagon in this manner. Plenty of helpers were to be had for every task.
Twenty-five or thirty men single-handed were kept busy shoveling dirt into wagons, others with teams, drove fresnoes or wheelers, others handled the plows, while a couple of the business men acting as waterboys were engaged in supplying the needs of the thirsty workmen. Everyone had his task to perform and the day passed without hitch or confusion, not withstanding the fact that most of them were business men and not hardened to that kind of work.

A half dozen automobiles plied back and forth between town and the place of work conveying men in the morning and afterward in bringing the women, who prepared a tasty picnic lunch on the ground at noon.

The work accomplished Thursday is only the beginning of the "good roads" movement in Beaver county. The business men of Forgan plan to have a "good roads" day regularly every other Thursday and to put in shape all the roads leading into town. The farmers have taken a great deal of interest and have manifested their desire to co-operate with the business men in building better roads and with the start that has been made a new era of development and progress is in sight for the people of Beaver county.

HAD AN EYE TO BUSINESS

Ugly Man by No Means Cast Down Over the Lawyer's Opinion as to His Looks.

He had a sample of a subscription book under his arm, but instead of asking the lawyer to look at it he said:

"As a matter of fact, my friend, am I not one of the homeliest men you ever met? Give it to me straight."

"I—I think you are," replied the lawyer after a long and steady look.

"Yes, I think you take the cake over any homely man I ever set eyes on!"

"That's candid, and I'm much obliged. Now, one thing more, and don't deceive me in that. I have been told that I look like a hippopotamus in the face. You have seen a hippo, and now you see me. Do you find any resemblance?"

"To be frank with you, I do."

"A very close resemblance?"

"Very close. If you were looking at me through the bushes I should feel certain that you were an escaped hippo. Sorry to have to tell you so, but you have asked me to be frank, and—"

"That's all right, sir, all right. I thought people had lied about my looks, but I find they have told me the truth. I look like a hippo, and a hippo is the homeliest looking beast on earth. That's all, sir, and I thank you."

"But you won't go off and—and commit suicide?" queried the lawyer.

"Suicide? Not by a jagful! No, sir.
I shall continue to live right on, but instead of canvassing for subscription books as heretofore I shall go around stopping clocks and arrange with some fellow to pay me 10 per cent commission on all repairs."—Exchange.

NEAT, EVEN FOR FRENCHMAN

Typically Parisian Was the Witty, If Ironical, Rebuke Administered Mean House Mistress.

The Parisian is proverbially polite, although he may and often does impart a flavor of ironical mischief to his courtesy. The following incident is typically Parisian.

It is the custom in the French capital for the cook to do all the marketing. This adds considerably to the cook's income, for every dealer allows her about 1 cent on every 20 cents that she spends. So French cooks insist on their marketing prerogative, and the mistress who denies it to them is held to be a very mean person.

Well, a person of this sort, an elderly woman, was in the habit of doing her own marketing in a long duster.
The duster hid her purchases. While she was usurping her cook's rights, it kept her from being detected in the act.

As this woman, one hot morning, was walking homeward in her duster from the St. Honoré market, she stub-bled and a leg of mutton fell and rolled across the sidewalk.

A passing stranger, sizing up the situation, picked up the leg of mutton and, with a bow and smile, returned it with this salutation:

"Permet me, Madame—your fan."

Problem.

When Col. J. C. S. Blackburn was active in politics in Kentucky, he would rather make a speech than anything else, unless it was to tell a story, and favored telling a story above anything else except making a speech.

He was travelling with a party of friends and one evening met a few Kentuckians, who welcomed him enthusiastically. One of his party, however, noticed that the colonel drew apart, apparently disturbed.

"What's the matter, Joe?" he was asked.

"What's the matter?" he reiterated.
"Matter enough. That's a fine crowd, isn't it? It's too large for an anecdote and too small for a speech."— Exchange.

Eclipse of the Moon.

The eclipse of the moon is caused by its passage through the shadow of the earth. When the moon dips entirely into the shadow the eclipse is "total"; when otherwise it is only partial. Sometimes the moon passes above or below the shadow, in which event there is no eclipse at all. Everything depends upon the position of the shadow and the "node." Because here are two opposite nodes, and the shadow moves around its circuit in the course of the year, it follows that the shadow will cross a node every six months. Hence it is only at intervals if somewhere near six months that an eclipse of the moon can occur.

He Knew the Bunch.

"Now, Tommy," said the Sunday school teacher, "suppose you had two apples and you gave another boy his choice of them, you would tell him to take the larger one, wouldn't you?"

"No, ma'am," said Tommy, promptly.

"Why, Tommy?" exclaimed the teacher in shocked surprise. "Why not?"

"Well," said Tommy, "in dis bunch wouldn't be necessary to tell him it."

Opportunity for the Crane.

"What makes you stand on one foot and move your shoulders in that way?" asked the snipe.

"Well," replied the crane, "there's chance of my learning to sing, so I'm practicing to see if I can't become a classic dancer."
